Overview

The Hyman Soloway Chair in Business and Trade Law is an endowed chair at the Faculty of Law named for the principal donor, the late Mr. Hyman Soloway, Q.C., formerly the long time senior partner in the law firm of Soloway Wright and a recognized leader in community and public affairs.

The Hyman Soloway Chair has a broad mandate to promote teaching and research in business and international economic law at the University of Ottawa. Working in collaboration with the Faculty of Law’s International Law Group, the chair seeks to provide opportunities for students, professors, alumni and the international law community to engage, learn and be inspired by leading experts in the field by supporting and organizing clerkships, memberships in and sponsorship of international law organizations (such as the Canadian Council on International Law and the American Society of International Law), conferences, workshops, speakers, communications and other activities.

About the current chairholder

Professor J. Anthony VanDuzer is one of the pillars of the Common Law Section’s international law community and the co-chair of the Faculty’s International Law Group. His main area of interest is international trade and investment law.

He has been a member of the Academic Advisory Council to the deputy minister for international trade and participated in technical assistance projects relating to business and trade law in developing economies, including Armenia, Bangladesh, China, El Salvador, Georgia, Kyrgyzstan, Pakistan, Russia, Thailand, Ukraine and Vietnam. Professor VanDuzer’s publications include The Law of Partnerships and Corporations (now in its fourth edition) and Integrating Sustainable Development into International Investment Agreements: A Guide for Developing Country Negotiators, written with colleagues Penelope Simons and Graham Mayeda, as well as more than 80 articles on business, trade and investment law issues.

He is also an adjunct research professor at the Norman Paterson School of International Affairs at Carleton University. Professor VanDuzer is very involved in mooting at the law school and coaches the Foreign Direct Investment Moot team with professor Anthony Daimsis and the Canadian Corporate/Securities Moot team with professor P.M. Vasudev.

Visiting professor

Each year, the law school presents the Hyman Soloway Lecture by a leading academic in business or international economic law. In 2019, for the first time, the chair supported the inaugural Hyman Soloway Chair visiting professor, professor Michael Ewing-Chow, who taught a course at the law school in the January term. Howard Mann, senior international law adviser for the International Institute for Sustainable Development (IISD) is the Hyman Soloway Chair Visiting Professor for 2020.

Biography - Howard Mann

Howard Mann is the senior international law adviser for IISD, where he specializes in international economic law relating to sustainable development. He is also a senior adviser to the Intergovernmental Forum on Mining, Minerals, and Sustainable Development (IGF). From 1999 to 2009, Howard founded and managed IISD’s Investment and Sustainable Development Program.

Howard has worked with colleagues to advise government officials from over 80 developing countries and multiple regional organizations on international investment law issues, investment treaty negotiations, investment contract negotiations in mining and agriculture, and the development of sound domestic investment laws and policies from a sustainable development perspective. He was a leading participant in the development and drafting of the Model Mining Development Agreement (MMDA) with the International Bar Association, the first internationally recognized model contract on mining from a sustainable development perspective. He has relevant human rights experience, including serving as an adviser to the United Nations on the work of professor John Ruggie, which led to the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights as well as the International Commission of Jurists.

Howard is a recognized leader in training for developing countries on international economic law, as well as mining law and contracts, having participated and led regional and national-level training programs in Africa, Latin America and Asia. In 2017, Howard was appointed as an international arbitrator in an investor–state arbitration for the International Centre for Settlement of Investment Disputes.

Before joining IISD, he was a specialist in international and constitutional law relating to the environment as counsel with Canada’s federal Department of Justice. In that capacity, he was part of Canadian negotiation delegations on climate change, biodiversity, hazardous waste and other international conventions. He also led the constitutional work on the development of Canadian implementation legislation for these agreements and the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act.
